FOUNDING ORGANISATIONS

WHAT IS ISRIA?

The International School on Research Impact Assessment (ISRIA) was created in response to the growing demand for skilled people who can assess the impact of research, including the return on investment in research.

WHO WILL BENEFIT?

Those working in program management, evaluation, knowledge translation, and policy and decision-making in areas such as: research and development for government, research funding organizations, academia, not-for-profits, industry, and the health industry.

WHAT CAN PARTICIPANTS HOPE TO GAIN?

Increased knowledge and skills on how to plan, manage, design, assess, measure, communicate and optimise research impact. A focus on biomedical and health sciences.

An enhanced understanding of the breadth of existing frameworks, tools, approaches and knowledge about research impact assessments. An opportunity to network and exchange ideas and best practices with international experts and peers in research impact assessment.
